Some 35,000 people die each year in the U.S. from gun violence, whether by suicide, homicide, or accident. Another 80,000 survive gun injuries. Gun violence is a matter of deepening concern to the religious community as well as to our entire society. Students are now rising up across the country, staging school walkouts and organizing mass nonviolent protests to say "enough is enough!" Has our nation reached a turning point? What can be done?
